

PEARY'S BOAT SAILS NORTH

Exploring Ship Roosevelt Begins Her Journey Towards The Frozen North.

A NEW SURGEON IS NOW SECURED

Dr. Louis J. Wolff Of Silverton, Oregon, Becomes a Member Of The Expedition At The Eleventh Hour.

New York, July 17.—With a fresh, cool breeze from the southwest and the sun glowing warm upon "old glory" flung out from the mizen truck, the Arctic exploring ship Roosevelt swung around from her anchorage at West Twenty-ninth street Sunday and headed down stream.

Aboard had just come Commander Robert E. Peary, N. S. N., the "pole seeker;" Mrs. Peary, their children, Marie Anighito Peary, also known as "Snowball" (Anighito means a high mountain peak, and is the name of the woman who made the "snow baby's" first fur suit), and Robert E. Peary, Jr.; Mrs. Peary's mother, Mrs. Magdalena Diebitsch; Mrs. Peary's sister, Miss Diebitsch; Miss Babb and some visitors.

Surgeon Joins Expedition.
The official surgeon is young Dr. Louis J. Wolff, of Silverton, Ore., just from the Cornell dispensary. Dr. Wolff, who has been at Morris Plains, N. J., read in the papers while coming in on a train Thursday the expedition was in need of a surgeon. He received his appointment at 9 o'clock Sunday morning. "I worked for it and got it," said Dr. Wolff.

Perry boats, excursion steamers and yachts shrieked godspeed and passing craft saluted and the Roosevelt's colors kept running up and down the balliards. The Roosevelt had her four whiteboats swung outward. On her decks she carried thirty-five tons of coal in sacks. By permission of Rear Admiral Coghlan, navy yard commandant, the navy tug Pentucket accompanied the Roosevelt as her tender.

Will Take on Eskimos.
The persons aboard who are bound for the far north, besides Commander Peary, are Chief Engineer George A. Wardwell of Bucksport, Me.; Dr. Wolff, Steward Charles Percy and Matthew A. Henson, Peary's faithful negro servant and companion on several expeditions. There was one more member of the expedition—Teddy, a cat that had strayed aboard the ship.

GEN. BLACKMAR PASSES AWAY

Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic Was on Tour of Northwest When He Expired.

Boston, Mass., July 17.—General W. W. Blackmar, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, died of interstitial nephritis at Boise, Idaho, Sunday. Mrs. Blackmar was with her husband at the last. The body will be brought here for burial.

General Blackmar arrived in Boise July 10, on a tour of the Grand Army posts in the Northwest. He was ill at the time, and failed steadily until the end. The seriousness of his condition was kept from the public at Mrs. Blackmar's request.

FALL RIVER MAY AGAIN BE SCENE OF A BIG STRIKE

Cotton Weavers Ask for Restoration of Wage Scale in Force Before July 1, 1904—Outcome in Doubt.

Fall River, Mass., July 17.—The union cotton weavers today made a formal demand upon the Cotton Manufacturers' Association for a restoration of the wage scale in force previous to July 1, 1904, and while the result of their demand will not be officially announced until the matter has been taken up by the representatives and officers of the manufacturers' association, it is understood that there is a grave likelihood of another strike, because certain of the manufacturers have already announced that their organization will under no circumstances review the old scale. The conditions do not warrant any advance, they say, and if the weavers decide to go on another strike, they will have to meet it as best they can. Current opinion is much against a strike. Business men are strongly opposed to the weavers' action in keeping up a ceaseless agitation and say that they will not support another strike as they did last year. On the other hand the weavers argue that the mills are so well sold ahead at the present time that they will be compelled to grant a slight advance in order to fulfil their contracts.

TAKE POLICE OFF OF THE WAGONS TODAY

Three Hundred Officers Are Returned to Their Regular Beats Today.

Chicago, July 17.—Three hundred policemen were taken off the strike wagons this morning in the downtown district and ordered back to street crossings. Assistant City Solicitor Kingston had both legs broken and will probably die. District Attorney Bell had a leg broken and received internal injuries. William Barnes, another passenger, sustained a concussion of the brain and will probably die. The elevator was wrecked.

WIFE SLAYER IS CAPTURED

Man Wanted in Belmont, Massachusetts, Tells How He Killed His Wife.

DECEPTION IS CAUSE OF THE CRIME

Woman Who Declared She Was Younger And Richer Than She Was, Angers Her Husband For Her Deception.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
La Junta, Colo., July 17.—John Schidolska, a Russian, wanted at Belmont, Mass., for the alleged murder of his wife Wednesday night, July 19, was arrested Sunday afternoon by Sheriff Barr, while passing through the city on the Santa Fe railroad.

The murderer confessed and gave the full details of the tragedy which has been puzzling the Massachusetts police. He said that he and his wife were drinking and quarreling Wednesday afternoon, and continued their quarrel at a park that night. Her taunts enraged him to such an extent that he cut her throat with a knife he says, and threw the body into a gully. Then he started for the West, making no attempt to conceal his identity.

Prisoner Willing to Return.
The prisoner expressed his willingness to return without papers, and he will be held by Sheriff Barr pending the arrival of officers from Massachusetts. A telegram from Chicago apprised Sheriff Barr of the fact that the Russian would be on Santa Fe train No. 1 from the east. The train stopped but a few minutes at the station, but this was sufficient for the sheriff to locate the only man in the train he believed could bear such a name. His first guess was the right one, Schidolska making no attempt to conceal his identity.

The murderer told a clear story of the tragedy. He said he came to America from Poland five years ago, and worked on a farm near Lynn, Mass. On Feb. 18, 1905, he married the woman whose murder he now confesses.

Claims Deception Caused Quarrel.
When he married her, he states, the woman represented that she had $600 and was but 28 years of age. He found afterward that she had but $220 in money and was more than 40 years old. The deception she worked upon him was the constant cause of quarrels, he said, and these quarrels had their culmination Wednesday night. That afternoon they decided to go to California, and the wife furnished the money for two tickets. Then they drank heavily and went out to a park at night. The quarrel over the false statements the woman had made before their marriage was renewed and the man became enraged. He threw a rock at her and struck her in the head, and while she was lying unconscious he gashed her throat with a penknife. Then he dragged the body through an unfrequented part of the park, throwing it in a gully and covering it with rubbish. Then the murderer, returning home, slept as peacefully as if nothing had happened. He left for the west Thursday noon, first returning the ticket that he had purchased for his wife, receiving back $89.

The evidence was wanted by Jerome in order to determine whether anyone connected with the Equitable can be held accountable criminally for the state of affairs disclosed by the investigation of the society.

APPLETON'S TWO VETERAN EDITORS

SAMUEL AND JAMES RYAN OF THE EVENING CRESCENT.

BOTH PROMINENT IN STATE

Judge Quarles and General Warner Senator from Missouri, Enlisted Together.

(By Lieut. Col. J. A. Watrous, U. S. A.)

"There is the judge; he will not know you except you speak." The remark was made by ex-Senator James Ryan. He referred to his partner and brother, Judge Sam Ryan of the Appleton Crescent.

Thirty-three years seem to rest lightly upon the broad shoulders of the veteran editor, the oldest in the state, since the death of the late William E. Cramer of the Evening Wisconsin. The plump, soft hand and familiar voice were as free from troubles as they were forty-six years ago, at our first meeting, when he called my attention to his brother James, as James, last month, called my attention to the judge, saying that he hired the Crescent force, but the brown hair was as white as carded cotton and the large, dark, laughing eyes were laughless and sightless.

It was Memorial day and the old editor was in his navy blue uniform, on his white head the black hat of war days and over his heart, yet young, was the usual ribbon of mourning, fastened to that was the Grand Army badge.

"As long as I could see I marched with the rest of the post to the cemetery. But it is better, I suppose, to ride than to miss the impressive ceremonies in our beautiful city of the army that has passed," and then a comrade who can see, led the venerable soldier to a carriage.

After the ceremonies had a pleasant talk with Judge Ryan. His host of friends will be glad to know that his health is good, that he is keeping up with the present events as the average citizen—thanks to his devoted wife and relatives who read to him everything of value in the papers. His admirers hope that good years are still in store for him; that his partner-brother the ex-senator, can, for some time to come, point to the sturdy old oak and say, "There is the judge."

A few weeks ago the Ryan brothers, Sam and James, celebrated the fifty-third anniversary of the birth of their paper, the Appleton Crescent, with which they have been connected uninterruptedly all of these years. But fifty-three are not all of the years that Judge Ryan has been a newspaper man in Wisconsin. He began his printer career seventy years ago; he was one of the editors of a paper at Green Bay in territorial times, six years before Wisconsin became a state, long before there was a mile of railroad; when Milwaukee was little more than a village, with a population of less than 8,000; when Chicago, instead of a city of 2,000,000 had less than 25,000; long before Minnesota, Kansas, Nebraska, California and Oregon were admitted to the union; when the nation had a population of between 20,000,000 and 25,000,000, instead of 85,000,000. He was an editor when there was no Manitowish, no Appleton, Neenah, Menasha, Marinette, LaCrosse, Eau Claire, Chippewa Falls, Stevens Point, Grand Rapids and numerous other cities and villages that now hold high rank in our state.

Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Sheboygan, Madison, Green Bay, Racine, Kenosha, Janesville, Watertown and Whitewater were little villages when he began writing for Wisconsin and her interests; and it is due to him to say that there are not many Wisconsin editors who have written with greater vigor or more enthusiasm than this veteran, who still lives and loves the state of his adoption, though he cannot see it or any of its beauties.

Nearly sixty years ago Sam Ryan was the sprightly young editor of the Fond du Lac Republican, a fearless advocate of the Whig party and its candidates. While a resident of Fond du Lac he held the office of postmaster. Again he returned to Green Bay, but in 1852 selected the little village of Appleton, which then had only a few hundred inhabitants, for his permanent home, and in company with his brother James founded The Crescent. Two things The Crescent has always been—democratic and an ever-lasting worker in behalf of all of the good interests of the city and the lower Fox river valley. The files of The Crescent during the past fifty-three years contain many thousands of columns of editorial and class articles, calling attention to the city and the valley. Who doubts that these earnest columns have had much to do in making Appleton one of the most beautiful and prosperous cities in the state, and the lower Fox river valley to blossom as the rose?

As a party paper The Crescent has been a "hard hitter." Its senior editor could tear a political opponent limb from limb, carve him crosswise, fill the fresh cuts with coarse salt and approve the enemy with laughter and unrestrained glee. Nothing used to do the vigorous, slashing editor more good than to stir up the animals of the opposing political camp. But as the years advanced he mellowed, as nearly all mankind mellow with age. He served in the Civil war in the Third cavalry, has been a member of the assembly, was for many years probate judge of Outagamie county, and for a long time was Appleton's municipal judge. He writes some now, and few days pass when he does not visit the office.

Judge Ryan was a charter member of the first state press association ever organized in the United States, and has been more or less active in promoting the interests of the Wisconsin Press association ever since. He was twice its president.

A score or more of successful editors have graduated from The Crescent office after careful and kindly instruction at the hands of the Ryan brothers. There are none of these graduates who do not recall with feelings of gratitude the friendly interest, the wide, considerate help given them by the Ryans. No reunion could afford them more pleasure than one which would find them assembled in Appleton mingling with these veteran editors and former employers and instructors.

For nearly sixty years the name of Sam Ryan has been familiar with all Wisconsin newspaper people, not to mention a vast army of others. But his brother James has been but little known outside of Appleton. He chose the business department of the paper, which he continued to look after until a few years ago, when he was succeeded by his son, Samuel J., who has proved a marked success in building up and expanding the business. He always preferred that the judge hold the office, do the political writing and be the display member of the firm. If there are men, women or children who know ex-Senator James Ryan, and do not like him, they have managed to keep the matter a dead secret. He is a most likable and lovable man. Everybody admires him. Like the judge, he is an able writer and editor. He has been mayor, state senator and postmaster.

May these two veteran Wisconsin editors live to enjoy many birthdays of the paper with which they have been continuously connected for more than half a century.

Millionaires are common sort of men after all; some of them, at least. A couple of them met at Ashland a few weeks ago. They did not look so very different from the "lumber-jacks" who had just accompanied them out of the pine woods. They wore slouch hats, their faces were tanned, their hands rough and their appetites ravenous. They were Frederick Weyerhaeuser of Wisconsin and Illinois, and Edward Rutledge of Chippewa Falls. They were looking after some of their timber in northern Wisconsin. That evening they left on the train for Hayward. Two of their foremen were with them. Soon after the train started, Mr. Rutledge said, "Mr. Weyerhaeuser, have you a pack of cards?"

"I have."

"Do you want a game?"

"Yes, I will help pass the time." And these two millionaires, with each a foreman for a partner, played "high five" the entire distance and enjoyed it as thoroughly as any one could.

Mr. Rutledge is several times a millionaire, and there is not much risk in saying that Mr. Weyerhaeuser ranks only second, if he does not first, among the wealthy men of the northwest. President J. J. Hill of the Great Northern, St. Paul, may be a few millions better off than Mr. Weyerhaeuser, but certainly not many. Each is worth more than a hundred millions. Mr. Weyerhaeuser has, during the past four or five years, bought hundreds of thousands of acres of the best timber land in Oregon, Washington and California.

Two beardless boys, cousins, met on a farm near Kenosha in 1860. They did not meet again until after the war in which one had won the gold leaves of a major, won from the lieutenant, also won from the first. The lieutenant remained in Wisconsin and the major removed to a neighboring state. They met in Milwaukee last week, both great lawyers, the lieutenant with a good record as a state and a United States senator and now a federal judge, and the major with a record as mayor of Kansas City, several terms in congress, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army and now a senator of the United States from Missouri.

It would be difficult to find a better matched or handsomer span of iron-grays than the long ago lieutenant, now Judge J. V. Quarles, and the long ago major, now Senator William Warner. Best of all, they have earned their honors.

You may remember that Maj. Warner is the second soldier-senator Wisconsin has given Missouri. Maj. Gen. Carl Schurz, the unsuccessful republican candidate for lieutenant governor of Wisconsin in 1857, was Missouri's first republican senator. Maj. Warner is her second.

Stationary engineer at the round house, Fred Vogel was off duty yesterday. Pay Gardener relieved him.

Fireman H. P. Merrill is laying off.

Operator Webster, night man at tower "YD" spent yesterday at Lake Geneva.

Wiper John Murphy returned to work this morning after a few days lay off.

Engineer F. A. Barter is off duty.

Portland, Ore., July 16.—The ninth annual convention of the National Association of Railway Agents assembled at the Lewis and Clark Exposition today for a three-day session.

THE JOY OF A GOOD CIGAR.

Smith Drug Co. Tell How Smokers Can Be Sure to Get Their Money's Worth.

"How can one be sure of getting his money's worth in buying a cigar?" asked a Gazette reporter of Mr. Smith of Smith Drug Co. "I'll tell you how to be sure. Just buy a Wadsworth Bros. Cigar. This cigar is always the same—a good, honest, satisfying smoke. It is made with a long Havana filler, so that it always burns with a firm, solid ash, the best sign of a good cigar."

"The Chico burns with a fragrance like that of the Carolina perfecto, a 25c cigar, but it costs only 5c. One of the best customers ever smoking the Chico, and when they stop in front of the cigar case they say, 'give us some more of those good cigars.' We pass out the Wadsworth Bros. Chico, and they go away, happy."

Try a Chico yourself, and see how good it is.

The delegates represent all of the more important railroads throughout the country.

Grain Rates Readjusted. Chicago, Ill., July 17.—The railroads today, according to the request of the local board of trade, today put into effect a readjustment of the grain rates from the Northwest through Chicago and the Twin Cities. The agreement also puts rates from the Twin Cities to points east of Buffalo, N. Y., upon a basis of 6½ cents higher than those in effect through Chicago. Heretofore the rates from Minneapolis were about four cents higher than from Chicago. The effect of the equalization will be to place Chicago and the Twin Cities on an even keel with respect to grain in the Northwest which might be regarded as tributary to both gateways alike.

St. Louis Railroad Sold. Clayton, Mo., July 17.—The property of the St. Louis, St. Charles and Western railroad company, which was recently released from a receivership, was sold at public auction here today, by the trustee, the Colonial Trust Company, of St. Louis, to satisfy bonds amounting to $600,000. The sale included all the property of the company, including its road from St. Louis to its terminus in the city of St. Charles, including a contract with the United Railways company to operate St. Charles Cars over any of its roads in the city of St. Louis at any time. It is understood that the interests securing control of the road are those of the United Railways Company.

Southern Pacific Dividend. New York, July 17.—The Southern Pacific Company today issued checks for its semi-annual dividend of 3½ per cent on its preferred stock.

Labor Notes

The Bar Association of Sacramento county, Cal., has appointed a committee to contest the Saturday half-day law as applied to city and county officers of the state, taking the position that it is unconstitutional.

Claims for damages amounting to $400,000 have been filed with State Auditor Bent by Attorney John H. Murphy, counsel for the Western Federation of Miners, on behalf of sixty-seven men who were deported last year from the Cripple Creek, Telluride and Las Animas (Col.) mining districts.

The annual convention of the Western Federation of Miners, at Salt Lake, Utah, voted to continue their permanent headquarters at Denver and to hold the next annual convention in Denver next June.

The April report of the Pennsylvania Employees Relief fund shows that the payment of benefits to its members and families of deceased members amounted to $109,561.35.

The fourth convention of the German Seamen's Union was held in Hamburg, recently. A resolution protesting against the employment of Chinese and other Asiatic labor on subsidized German mail steamers was adopted. Several important changes were made in the benefit features of the organization.

A MONSTER MELON CROP IN PROSPECT

Better Quality Than for Ten Years.

Back—Sweet Corn Coming in a Few Weeks.

Large shipments of watermelons have already arrived in Janesville. As far as the watermelon crop is concerned the negro question is solved this summer. It is claimed that there will be melons for every man in the south and the fruit will be cheaper in the north than ever before. Reports from Alabama and Georgia indicate that the crop will be better in quality and greater of production than it has been for the last 10 years. No one will be compelled to steal melons this year. Commission men declare that they know of counties in Georgia, where 1,200 acres of melons are planted and others have patches of 500 or 600 acres. It is estimated that the north buys some $1,000,000 worth of melons from Georgia yearly and that some 2,000 cars are brought into service.

Strawberries About Gone. This week sees the last of the strawberry crop, but there are large offerings of other berries to take their place. Nothing but bad weather can prevent the largest crop of raspberries being marketed that this part of the state has known for a long time. Growers report that the bushes are so loaded with berries that the outside branches are borne down to the ground by the weight. Blueberries are not as plentiful and command a higher price than that of usual. The prospects are that if good weather prevails blackberries will be unusually plentiful this year.

The finest kind of peaches are now offered. The fruit comes from Texas. They are of good color, fully ripe and have the flavor of the best season's fruit. Apples are coming rather slowly but those that appear are of good flavor and seem promising.

Looking for Sweet Corn. The merchants are now beginning to look for the first ears of sweet corn. If the weather is favorable for two weeks the wishes of many housewives will be gratified in this regard. The vegetable list now comprises about every thing to be desired and is mostly home grown. Prices are not materially changed although a few days will bring heavier offerings of green and wax beans and lower figures. A few loads of new potatoes have been brought to the Janesville markets, but as yet no appreciable amount of this year's local grown tubers have arrived.

Announcement is made by the director of fine arts of the Carnegie institute, Pittsburgh, that entries for the tenth annual international exhibition of oil paintings must be at the Carnegie institute, Pittsburgh, Pa., not later than Oct. 11.

FASHION NOTES

PARIS FASHION NOTES.

The height of the summer season finds the cup of the woman fashionable full to overflowing; certainly the best in the gifts of the couturiers has been laid at her feet this year and the smart gowns which make the summer resorts look like great carnivals of color are a delight to wear as well as to see.

The light shades of ecru and tan, which combine so charmingly with white laces in pongs and voiles, also show off to good effect in silk mulls and chiffons. A pretty example is shown in a semi-dress design which is made with a full skirt, quite plain, except for two flat tucks, or rather simulated tucks, appearing above the hem. The waist is a full surprise, and opens about half-way to the shoulders and a narrow band of point, of tiny ruffles, white German Valenciennes lace and the short undersleeves are also lace-trimmed.

The surprise front continues its prestige, and even upon plainly fitted bodices a flat surprise effect is often introduced.

Another pretty frock which will appeal to the woman with a predilection for the many dainty shades of blue this season is of mousseline de sole trimmed in lace tinted to a pale wedgewood blue and in velvet ribbon of the same hue. A transparent guimpe of white lace relieves the bodice next the face, and below this a flat fish of the blue lace crosses surplacewise.

It cannot be claimed that this is an all-white season, yet it does not suffice to have only one white frock in one's summer outfit, for it is next to impossible to get along with less than two—one of linen of substantial weight and another of sheerer quality. The beauty of white is that it can be worn so often without becoming monotonous, and at the same time is always charming in effect.

White batiste frocks trimmed with embroidery are extremely smart, and the triple skirts are never prettier when trimmed with this material, the wide embroidery being used for the three skirt sections with graceful results. One such design has the flounces finished on the edge in large scallops and with an embroidered design of heavy raised dots set in circles, one circle within another.

A straight edge is given the bottom flounce of the unlined skirt by laying the deep scalloped edge flat upon a broad band of batiste inset with bands of narrow Valenciennes, and sewing it firmly. The middle point of each scallop touches the bottom edge of the hem, but between scallops the open spaces, show the bands of Valenciennes and batiste. Some such device is always necessary whenever an unlined skirt is made of scalloped embroidery, frequently a little frill of the material, lace bordered, is set just under the scallops which rest upon it.

The blouse is daintily trimmed with a deep bertha of embroidery set on with tiny vertical ticks, and the yoke and sleeves are made entirely of bands of Valenciennes insertion joined with narrow bands of hand embroidery.

It is not too late in the season to buy embroideries, and the prettiest and most elaborate designs can be had at greatly reduced prices, for the smart shops are anxious to dispose of the remaining stock to make way for the fall novelties, which will soon be appearing.

Nothing is more desirable for morning wear than bodice and skirt frocks of sheer lawn or figured percale trimmed with a bit of fine embroidery. They succeed the shirt waist suits in name only, for their design and general outline are the same. Some of the prettiest patterns for summer gowns are found among the wash fabrics of adonized and variety this summer and adorned with lace, embroidery, fancy beading, through which satin or velvet ribbon is run, they are charmingly simple.

Chambray is still popular and fetching as a summer fabric, but in the confusion made over linen, it has not received the mention which it deserves. Like linen, it lends itself charmingly to all of the smart embroideries and a frock of this fabric can be gotten up in most modish design at very reasonable cost. It sets off with true elegance the yokes of broderie Anglaise which are so much used in the decoration of chambray dresses and is also smart embroidered with flowers of large design worked in natural colors.

COLORED RESIDENTS HOPE FOR A CHURCH

Of Their Own in Janesville at No Distant Date—Holding Weekly Services Now.

Some forty colored people who are making their homes in Janesville expect at no distant date to organize a church in this city. Services were conducted by a Beloit pastor in a South Franklin street home last Wednesday evening and it is expected hereafter will be held here regularly, growing sufficiently to warrant the establishment of permanent quarters and the securing of a resident pastor for the religious organization.

FREPORT LEADS IN ATTENDANCE

ILLINOIS TOWN SHOWS BEST FINANCIAL RETURNS IN LEAGUE.

GREEN BAY IS NOT PAYING

President Powers Issues Attendance Report for Half of the State League Season.

That the attendance at ball games in the cities composing the circuit of the Wisconsin Association of Professional Baseball Clubs has followed a ratio closely corresponding with the standing of the clubs in the pennant race is shown in an official report of attendance issued by John T. Powers, president of the league. The report covers a period from May 4, the opening of the season, and embraces 164 scheduled games, lacking just one of being on a half of the season.

Green Bay is at the foot of the class as to patronage as well as in regard to the number of games won, with an average attendance of 370 persons and average receipts of $92.50. Freeport heads the financial list, as well as the percentage column, with an average attendance of 435 persons and receipts of $123.75.

The only exception to the rule quoted is Beloit, which is next to Green Bay in receipts while occupying a place in the first division in the percentage column. This is explained by the fact that the Beloit team was playing losing ball during the forepart of the season. President Powers' report gives these totals on attendance:

Freeport, 13,267; La Crosse, 11,499; Wausau, 9,736; Oshkosh, 9,641; Beloit, 12,441; Green Bay, 10,364. Grand total, 67,048. Grand average, 11,174.

The number of scheduled home games: Freeport, 27, including 2 rains; La Crosse, 28, including 5 rains; Wausau, 24, including 3 rains; Oshkosh, 24, including 5 rains; Beloit, 23, including 2 rains; Green Bay, 23, including 3 rains. Grand total, 164, including 20 rains. Grand average, 27.

The average attendance and receipts: Freeport, 435, $123.75; La Crosse, 410, $102.50; Wausau, 404, $101; Oshkosh, 401, $100.25; Beloit, 377, $94.25; Green Bay, 370, $92.50. Grand totals, 2,457, $142.5. Grand averages, 409, $102.37.

With the elimination of the 20 rainy days there were games played on 144 days and the average patronage for the league at games actually played was 465 paid admissions.

"If the league duplicates the attendance in the last half of the season," says President Powers in his report, "no club will stand to lose more than $1,000, and as there is a likelihood that the weather man will not treat us so shabbily for the remainder of the season, some of the clubs will declare dividends."

Oshkosh and La Crosse have been the greatest sufferers from rain, these clubs having as many postponed games on account of rain as the other four combined. Oshkosh has lost two Sundays by rain and one day during the United Commercial Travelers' convention. Had they been fortunate enough to get in those games the Sawdust city undoubtedly would have the banner attendance of the league up to date. La Crosse lost one Sunday and the weather was miserably bad on other big days. Wausau was probably the worst sufferer through unfavorable weather. It snowed there on the opening day and they had 800 people.

The record for attendance at a single game is held by Freeport, with La Crosse a close second. Freeport had 1,900 people on the fourth of July and La Crosse had 1,747 people on May 7 in a game with Wausau.

SAVED FROM THE SURGEON'S KNIFE

Prominent Woman Rescued From Operating Table.

VICTIM OF STRANGE MALADY

Wife of Well Known Doctor Tells Remarkable Story to the Public.

Milwaukee, July 17.—(Special.)—Suffering from the effects of a mysterious malady and ready to submit to the surgeon's knife, a prominent woman of this city last week was saved from the operating table by the means of a new discovery in medicine, according to the story told by Mrs. J. H. Schallitz, wife of Dr. Schallitz, living at No. 408 Third street.

So many things have arisen in this city to cause a stir among the afflicted people within the past few weeks they have become accustomed to hearing about the unusual experience of Mrs. Schallitz with its remarkable connections has been the most astounding that has been told since The Great Cooper, as he is called, first visited Milwaukee.

Seldom has any one starving of the ravages of an unknown disease of the stomach and resigned to the hazards of an operating table been rescued from these dangers by means of a small quantity of a popular remedy. But Dr. J. P. Schallitz, one of the best known veterinary surgeons in Wisconsin, joining with his wife in telling the public what Cooper remedies have done for her.

Dr. Schallitz is special veterinary surgeon for the Val Blatz Brewing company, the Pabst Brewing company and the Northwestern Fuel company. He has a wide circle of friends who rejoice with him over the remarkable improvement in his wife's health.

Decided to Risk Her Life. Mrs. Schallitz for several years has been a victim of chronic stomach trouble. She had suffered greatly and finally when she was utterly unable to retain anything on her stomach and her trouble was diagnosed as cancer of the stomach she and her family decided that it was best for her to submit to a surgical operation.

Last Monday was fixed upon as the day that perhaps would mean life or death to her.

In the meantime Dr. Schallitz had heard remarkable stories of what people had said Cooper had done for them, and he decided as a last resort to write to the philanthropist and give him a full description of his wife's condition.

One week ago yesterday he purchased the remedies Cooper advised him to use. After taking only a few doses Mrs. Schallitz was so greatly benefited that it was determined that a surgical operation was wholly unnecessary.

She is now able to eat with relish a meal, that would do justice to the most robust man.

Tells Her Own Story.

"But the story of her remarkable experience is best told in her own words: 'I had been troubled with my stomach for several years past. For the last four weeks I had been under continual treatment with local doctors without receiving a particle of benefit. I have taken one-half a bottle of the medicine Cooper told me to use, and my improvement has been wonderful.'

"During the last four weeks I had been unable to hold food, water of medicine on my stomach, but now I can eat and enjoy a good, hearty meal."

Cooper remains in this city the rest of this week.

THE COTTON REPORT SCANDAL.

President Roosevelt's determination to take all possible steps to prosecute and punish Assistant Statistician Holmes of the Agricultural Department and any other officials found implicated with him in falsifying cotton statistics or selling advance information to cotton speculators will be universally approved. The impression was given in Secretary Wilson's first report on the cotton "leak" that Mr. Holmes had committed no act for which he could be indicted by a grand jury. This turns out to have been a misapprehension; for the United States District Attorney for the District of Columbia, whose opinion was asked in the matter, has since explained that he saw only a part of the evidence against Holmes, and that he is not prepared to say, after a fuller study of the case, that an indictment cannot be drawn against the dismissed official. The President is determined to use every legal means to punish the gross breach of trust of which Holmes was guilty, and the Solicitor General has been instructed to take the evidence in hand and institute, if possible, a criminal prosecution.

In view of the peculiar turpitude of Holmes' offense, it is particularly desirable that he should be judicially disgraced and punished. Mere removal from office is no adequate penalty for the betrayal of trust by which he profited. He held a confidential post under the government, and was fully alive to his official obligations and responsibilities. He knew that the department's credit would be shaken and that vast business interests would be injuriously affected by the manipulations he undertook. His wrongdoing was deliberate and wilful, and admitted of none of the technical palliations—ignorance, "general custom" and so forth—which "grafters" in the government service are prone to set up in their own defense. So flagrant a violation of duty deserves an exemplary punishment. In the interest of public morals and good government it is important that every nerve be strained to bring the culprit to justice; and we hope that the Attorney General's office will find a means of bringing the frauds committed in the Statistician's Bureau within the operation of the criminal statutes.

It seems desirable also to undertake a thoroughgoing investigation of the bureau whose work has been blackened by last week's discoveries. The President of the New York Cotton Exchange has just written a letter to President Roosevelt urging such a course. He asks, not without reason, that a full inquiry be made in "the methods which led to the corruption, with the view of preventing the possibility of recurrence, and that the guilty ones may be adequately punished." The investigation which followed the first disclosures of "grafting" in the Postoffice Department showed that many more officials were concerned in irregularities and fraud than was at first suspected. Perhaps it would be well to turn another Joseph L. Bristow loose in the office of the statistician in the Department of Agriculture. This administration has proved its sincere purpose to uproot "graft" and "graffers" in the government service. It has already done a great work, and it will have the cordial support of the public in continuing to probe, whatever necessary, for proofs of venality and corruption.

WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN.

Lawson in Kansas is a notable instance of an anachronism. Ten years ago Kansas would have been exactly the field for a person of Lawson's characteristics to cultivate. People have somewhat short memories in this country and almost a generation has come to the front since the days of Mary Ellen Lease, Governor Leedy and Senator Puffer. How many people remember the elaborate assurances of Governor Leedy previous to his election with respect to his policy as regards the bath room in the executive mansion of Kansas. It was a picturesque instance of those picturesque days and in some faithful memories there will always linger the heroic picture of Governor Leedy explaining that he was not responsible for the existence of that bathroom and that he would not officially recognize its existence. Those who with bated breath followed the proceedings of the famous "freak legislature" in Kansas cannot surely have entirely forgotten the events of those stirring days. Mary Ellen Lease's classic remark that it was time for Kansas to "quit raising corn and begin raising liars" has become one of the helms of the nation, though a careless generation may have forgotten it. Kansas in these degenerate days has almost become normal. Its farmers have become rich and are lending money in Wall street. They have found out how to run automobiles and operate pianolas and we are credibly informed that the percentage of bath tubs to dwelling houses is fully as large in Kansas as in any state in the union. It is to this Kansas, a state of prosperity, purple and fine linen, that Lawson has come bringing a collection of quack nostrums of the vintage of the year of Coxe. What on earth does he suppose he is going to accomplish?

In his speech Lawson quotes the famous sonnet written by Ingalls of Kansas to "Opportunity." How curiously it applies to his own case. If in the crazy times of 1894 and 1895 he had done the things and said the things that he is now doing and saying he might have been a second Coxe and he might have written his mark deeply upon his country's history. He might have done some practical farming of the Mary Ellen Lease school. But barring the fact that in this country a free show interests every man, woman and child at any hour of the day or night he must be regarded as having lived too late. Kansas has cut its hair, washed up, put on its store clothes and become rich and respectable.

THE RUSSIAN ASSEMBLY.

Current reports of Mr. Boulignan's plan for a Russian assembly are probably correct. They accord pretty well with the hints which have been given from time to time for months past, and especially with the forecast of about four months ago, when Mr. Boulignan was said to have his plans almost ready to lay before the Emperor. The scheme of a legislative assembly would seem quite rudimentary and inadequate in almost any other country, but in Russia it is so "advanced" as to seem revolutionary.

The assembly is to be elected, we are told, by universal suffrage of both sexes. It will be a tremendous experiment to put the ballot into the hands of scores of millions of people to whom the suffrage is as strange and unused as the canals of Mars, and of whom less than one-third of the men and less than one-tenth of the women can read and write. From such an electorate what sort of representative parliament will be sent to the capital? It is probably a wise provision that gives the Emperor an absolute veto over all its doings and power to suspend its sittings at will. Nevertheless, the educational value of such an assembly will be enormous. It will give the Russian people a public voice such as they have never had before. It will accustom them to participate in public affairs, and will in time enable them to do so intelligently and profitably. In spite of its imperfections and of the blunders it will make, that assembly will mark the greatest step forward in governmental affairs the Russian empire has taken in all its history.

MRS. MARGARET FOX, FOR FORTY-FIVE YEARS RESIDENT OF COUNTY, DIES

Death came Early Last Evening at Her Home on Cherry Street—
Seventy-seven Years Old.

Mrs. Margaret Fox, an old and highly respected resident of Rock county, passed away at her home at 154 Cherry street last evening at half-past five o'clock. The deceased was seventy-seven years of age and had resided in the town of Porter for two score years, removing to this city about five years ago. She is survived by three children: one son, Edward Fox, of the town of Porter, and two daughters, Mrs. Peter Barrett of the town of Center and Miss Mary Fox of this city. Funeral services will be held from St. Patrick's church Tuesday morning at ten o'clock.

Mrs. Rockwood

Word has been received from Portage that Mrs. Rockwood, widow of the late Major Rockwood, who died last Wednesday, passed away yesterday afternoon. She had been expected that the remains of Major Rockwood would be brought to Janesville for interment Saturday, but owing to the serious illness of Mrs. Rockwood they were placed in a vault at Portage. Word has been received that both bodies will arrive in this city tomorrow morning at ten-thirty and will be interred at Oak Hill cemetery.

Ralph Stark

All that is mortal of the late Ralph Stark, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Q. Stark of the town of La Prairie, was tenderly laid at rest in the cemetery at Shopton Saturday. Services were held from the family residence at one o'clock and from the Congregational in the afternoon. Rev. Maurer was the officiating clergyman. The pallbearers were Ray Swingle, Roy Roth, Solo Rice, Ray Bostwick, Claud Earle and Valentine Mott. Song services were rendered by R. K. Overton and Miss Ida Sweet. The floral tributes were beautiful and profuse.

PRESS COMMENT.

Boston Herald: A foul tip struck Miss Bertha Ganz on the nose while she was a spectator of a game between the New York and Boston ball teams at Polo grounds, Manhattan, and the court declares she is not entitled to damages. Masks should be come fashionable now among ladies who have a fondness for this sport.

BAD BLOOD
INVITES DISEASE

The blood supplies nourishment and strength to every part of the body when it is rich, pure and healthy. When from any cause it becomes diseased or weak it cannot supply the nutrient the system needs, and the body is unable to resist the diseases and troubles that are constantly assailing it to break down the health.

I have used S. S. S. and found it to be an excellent blood purifier and tonic. My blood was weak and impure, and as a result my system became very much run down and debilitated. I lost twenty or more pounds in weight, had no appetite and was in bad shape. Seeing S. S. S. advertised I began its use, and am well pleased with the results after using it for some little while. My system and general health have been wonderfully built up, and I no longer hesitate to give S. S. S. the credit for it. H. MARTIN, Warren, O., 60 Second St.

Rheumatism, Skin Diseases, Scrofula, Catarrh, Old Sores, Malaria, Contagious Blood Poison, etc., are the results of bad or diseased blood, and until this vital fluid is cleansed and made pure, strong and healthy, these diseases will continue. The greatest of all blood purifiers and tonics is S. S. S. It has been curing all diseases of the blood for more than forty years by going down to the very root of the trouble, forcing out all poisons and impurities and building up every part of the system by its fine tonic effect. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism, Skin Diseases, Scrofula, Catarrh, Old Sores, Malaria, Contagious Blood Poison, and all other blood troubles, and cures them permanently. S. S. S. is the acknowledged king of blood purifiers and the greatest of all tonics. Books on the different diseases, and any medical advice you may wish will be given without charge.

MORE LOGIC

What are you putting into this day—fear, uncertainty, growls, grouches, discouragements? Doubt of yourself and your powers—fear lest the thing you want to do you will not be able to do? Or are you taking to it a glad faith and assurance, a determination to succeed, a live, thrilling belief in yourself and in the work you are to do?

Whatever your attitude may be, each morning when you awaken to face another day, says the Philadelphia Inquirer, remember this: Whatever you put into that day you will get out of it.

Perhaps you have been in the habit of waiting to see what the day would bring to you—waiting upon its events, bring to speak. Perhaps, while wishing for inspiration and for success in your work, you have deferred to conditions and influences yet to be manifested.

If those conditions and influences proved to be unfavorable you blamed luck for it. You believed yourself to be at the mercy of circumstances. If the day brought you a blue mood instead of the happy, energetic one you wanted, you thought there was no help for it, and fought your blues as best you could.

Why not get at the root of the matter? Why not put the blame where it belongs? The fact is that by your own words you decide what the day shall mean to you. It is your power to say each morning what you intend to realize before night comes.

The hours stretch before you, plastic to your thought. It is you who must determine the shape their events shall take.

If you have been facing the morning with a mind full of life, but and, however, why wonder that you have not succeeded as you hoped?

It is one thing to hope and another to decree. You may hope with fervor every day of your life for the good you desire, but if you fortify that hope with nothing more positive than ifs, buts and howevers, you need not be disappointed to see that you are continually doomed to disappointment.

Whatever you put into the day you get out of it.

Take the conquering attitude. At the very beginning ally yourself with success forces by declaring that you intend to do the things you want to do. Determine to realize happiness from whatever you undertake. Determine to find your work with magnetism and joy.

When you take this stand you league your mind with all the success forces in the universe. Just as soon as you cease waiting upon conditions and declare your rights as ruler you summon these forces to work with you and for you in every endeavor.

Be glad and complain no longer of handicaps, of moods, of discouragements. Let go of your fears, let go of your uncertainty, your doubts, your unfaith. Success is for you if you are for success. Happiness is with you if you are with happiness. Greet the day with a glad hand.

What are you putting into the day? Ask yourself the question. Whatever you put into it you will get from it.

Maybe you want a want ad.

WILL THE PLANS BE CONSUMED?

TALK OF MOVING NONESUCH CIRCUS TO MILWAUKEE BY TRAIN.

IT WOULD ADVERTISE CITY

To Be Made a Feature of the State Fair—The Plan Is Feasible.

There is a possibility, not a strong probability, that the citizens of Milwaukee, the visitors to the state fair, the state at large, the country in general, will learn of the Nonesuch Bros. circus. Not only learn that Janesville is on top of the map, but that it is the most progressive and up-to-date city in southern Wisconsin, in the market for fun and merriment, for factories and industries, for a larger population and as a general market for the whole of the southern part of the state.

Think of the Plan
For many years Janesville has entertained its visitors on the Fourth of July with a mock society burlesque circus parade. The Nonesuch Bros. have become famous. The show in Janesville this last year created more talk than ever before. The interest in seeing the great parade brought twenty-five thousand people to the city despite the rain and unpleasant weather. Thousands of others would have come but for the weather. Now the plan is proposed. Take the whole of the Nonesuch Bros. circus to Milwaukee. Take in the Zoos, the bareback riders, the drum corps, Miss Chic Nonesuch, the wild west, the old Deadwood stage coach, the funny clowns, the cages of home-made animals, the Roman Chariot drivers, the best features of the past two or three years, including the famous Bostwick mermaid and others and give Milwaukee, the state fair, the state at large and, through the agency of the press, the whole country a chance to know Janesville is alive and bustling.

It is Feasible
The plan is feasible. It is not visionary. The money can be raised. The benefit such an advertisement would be to the city cannot be measured by a few hundred dollars—the cost would entail. It would be a boon to the city—a species of advertisement that money cannot buy. Place Janesville before the public at large in the right way and the city is bound to boom. No other city has ever attempted such a gigantic form of advertisement. Why not Janesville? Janesville is original. Its parade, a conception of a few men, has made it famous. Why not extend this fame? It would not cost a vast amount of money. It could be easily accomplished and beside giving Janesville a vast amount of free advertising would give those participating a trip to Milwaukee, free admission to the fair grounds and all its wonders of the Pike and a day's outing that would be unique to say the least.

The Plan
The plan roughly sketched out at the present time would be to make it an entirely Janesville affair, but run as are the large circuses. Ship the horses, wagons and equipment into Milwaukee by a special train with the three hundred odd performers on another special. Land at the North-western depot early in the morning. Form the line of parade at the head of Wisconsin street and then march through the center of Milwaukee to the fair grounds arriving there about noon. Once around the race track and the thing is done. The trick is turned. Janesville has received more free notices than could be bought. It has been a circus day, a picnic and a Fourth of July combined for those taking part. The procession would be nearly a mile long. It would be a wonderful feature. According to the posters that would announce it, it would be "Bigger and Better than ever, Reorganized, Rejuvenated and Redeclared." Such a feature has never before been undertaken by any city, any aggregation, any society. It is novel. It is unique.

Not Too Hard
It would not be too hard an undertaking. Under the skillful management of George McKee, Charles Bostwick, Dave Walt, Joe Murray, L. L. Leslie and others who have arranged for past celebrations aided by the well-organized committees, each with its own work to do, each directly under and responsible to one head, it could be accomplished like clock work. With the hearty co-operation of the merchants, business men and workers of the past it would make matters simple and easy. Run the affair strictly as a genuine circus should run. Have everything complete, banners, plumes, harness, horses, performers, everything in order and ready to fall in line when the bugle calls assembly. The idea of going in over the Northwestern road was to have a good place to form the parade on the lake front. It could be done as well on the park in front of the St. Paul depot or elsewhere, but when ever way it is the excursions could go in over one road and back over the other.

Minor Plans
This matter was discussed informally this morning by several business men. They were heartily in favor of it. Grant U. Fisher, member of the state agricultural board and grand marshal of the fair will present it at a meeting of the state fair board Wednesday afternoon in Milwaukee. It is probable that a committee of Janesville business men will meet with the board to set forth the claims of Janesville, and it is possible that the proposition will be accepted and the day set for the grand display, Thursday, September 14th, Milwaukee and Janesville day.

Such a proposition would attract thousands of people to Milwaukee that day. To make the matter a success from the Janesville end the merchants here would be asked to make the day a holiday. It would be an event that could not be equalled. The matter will be taken up officially later and if decided upon will be made a success as have been all the undertakings of Janesville in the past.

DR. PALMER LEAVES THE FIRE POLICE

As Consequence of Anti-Pass Law—Officers May Not Ride Free on Street Cars.

In order to escape possible violation of the anti-pass law, Dr. W. H. Palmer, who is physician for the C. & N. W. Ry. Co., has resigned his membership in the organization of fire police, after fifteen years of service, and the same has been accepted. The body is limited to 20 members and there are always several applications on file, so that the vacancy will in all likelihood be filled at no distant date. After an examination of the anti-pass law this morning a well-known attorney gave it as his opinion that its stringent provisions would prevent policemen and firemen from riding on the street cars without cost. It stipulates that no public officer, either state or municipal, shall accept from such corporations any privilege not granted to all men except as he does so while engaged in actual service in the interest of one of these corporations of which he is an employee.

TWAS MISTAKE TO THINK HIM DRUNK

A Touch of Sun Was All That Troubled J. P. Daly According to His Story in Court.

"Not drunkenness, your Honor—prostration by the heat," insisted J. P. Daly when haled into municipal court this morning. "He was so drunk that he couldn't tell us where he came from," rejoined Chief Comstock. After a while Mr. Daly decided it would be expedient to plead guilty, even though innocent, as the burden of testimony seemed likely to be against him in a trial. There was imposed upon him a fine and costs amounting to $2.05 with the alternative of five days in jail. J. H. Clifford admitted that he had participated in a keg-party and staid too long by the brimbling cup. A fine and costs amounting to $4.05 or five days in jail was his portion. Frank Sadler admitted drunkenness but denied hitting Officer Bencke's right thumb while attempting to resist arrest. However, the toothmarks are there. He also denied taking money away from his mother for the purpose of negotiating for more fire-water. Marshal Comstock told the court that Sadler was the worst common drunkard in Janesville. Five days in jail and a fine and costs amounting to $6.05, or fifteen additional days in jail, was the sentence pronounced.

OVER FIVE HUNDRED ON MILWAUKEE TRIP

Record Patronage on Sunday Excursion to Milwaukee and Record Time for Big Train.

More than five hundred people from Janesville visited the Cream City yesterday, making the trip on the Trades Council excursion train, which left here at quarter eight in the morning and returned shortly before half-past one this morning. It was the largest Sunday excursion sent in to Milwaukee from this city over the St. Paul line in years and the crowds filled nine passenger coaches. The run to Milwaukee was made in record time, the train consisting of ten coaches being hauled the entire distance in but a little over two hours. Engineer Tom Fox, who recently established the record between Janesville and Madison with the Commercial Travelers' special, was in charge of the engine. The day in Milwaukee was spent at the various places of amusement by the larger portion of the visitors. Quite a number of the membership of the Badger Gun club of Janesville passed the afternoon at the range of the North Side Gun club.

MILLION ACRES ARE OPEN FOR ENTRY MEN

President Announces Big Land Distribution—Preferences for Soldiers.

The president Saturday signed a proclamation providing for the opening on August 28 of the unallotted lands in the Uintah Indian reservation of Utah, which may interest Janesville people. Such lands as may be reserved prior to August 28 for military, forestry and other purposes, and such mineral lands as may have been disposed of under existing laws will not be subject to entry. Registration for these lands will commence at 9 a. m. August 1 at Grand Junction, Col., and will close at 6 p. m., August 12. To obtain registration each applicant must appear at one of the registration places in person, as registration by mail will not be permitted.

Honorably discharged soldiers and sailors of the civil war, Spanish-American war and Philippine insurrection, who are entitled to benefits under the land acts, may register through an agent of their own selection, which agent the soldier or sailor must give a duly executed power of attorney on a blank form provided by the commissioner of the general land office, but no person can act as agent for more than one soldier or sailor.

The order in which, during the first 60 days following the opening, the registered applicants will be permitted to make homestead entry of lands will be determined by a drawing for the district publicly held at Provo, Utah, commencing at 9 a. m. August 17, and continuing for such period as may be necessary to complete the same.

Following the drawing, the making of entries will begin August 28 at Vernal, Utah. Persons who make homestead entry for any of the lands opened will be required to pay therefor at the rate of $1.25 per acre upon making final proof, but no payment other than the usual fees and commissions will be required at the time the entry is made.
The total area of the Uintah Indian reservation is 2,445,000 acres, of which 1,010,000 acres have been placed in the permanent forest reserve, 250,000 reserved for Indian grazing lands, 3,510 for the Fort Duchesne military reservation and 112,000 allotted to the Indians, which leaves only 1,069,000 acres available for entry. Only non-mineral land can be entered during the first 60 days and it is considered that not more than one-half of the land subject to agricultural entry will be desirable for homestead entries, upon all of which irrigation will be necessary.

Rosa and Adams of Beloit and John Cunningham of this city, the Beloit defendant.

The Misses Rose and Alice Morrisey are spending the week in Edgerton.

VISITOR DROWNS IN ROCK RIVER

ARTHUR SMITH OF CHICAGO CLAIMED BY CURRENT.

FRIEND HAS NARROWESCAPE

Clarence Davey, His Companion, Saves Self—Rowboat Upsets Near the Chautauqua Grounds.

In returning from a trip up the river about noon, Clarence Davey and Arthur Smith, two Chicago boys who were visiting in the city, were tipped into the deep water before the Howard place near the Chautauqua grounds, and the latter drowned. The two lads had gone out for a pleasure ride and on their way back were passing through a patch of rough water when in some unknown manner the boat upset. Davey succeeded in reaching the rowboat, but Smith was less fortunate. An oar was extended to him by his friend but before he was able to grasp it, it was thought a cramp seized him, and he went down.

Current Treacherous
Word of the tragedy was sent to the city and a party of rescuers in boats and with grappling hooks commenced the search for the body, which up till three o'clock had not yet been recovered. Among the searchers were Marshal Comstock, Officer John Brown and F. F. Pierson. The place at which the accident happened is the same one where Hans Olson was last summer claimed by the current.

Lived in Chicago
Arthur Smith, aged seventeen, lived at 505 Warren street, Chicago, and was employed in the North-Western depot. He had secured a two weeks' vacation and with his friend, Clarence Davey, aged sixteen, and the latter's little sister, Clara Davey, was spending it here, being the guests of Miss Anna E. Davey, an aunt of Mr. and Miss Davey, at 154 Washington street. Clarence Davey is the son of E. C. Davey, 1017 Harrison street, Chicago, who was born in Janesville and lived here up till about seventeen years ago. The lads came Sunday and Mrs. E. C. Davey was expected to arrive here Wednesday.

'PROTESTORS' CALLED UNTHINKING PERSONS

Editor of Royal Arcanum Bulletin Replies to the Objections Against New Rates.

In the last issue of the Royal Arcanum Bulletin, the official periodical of the Supreme Council of that order, the protestors against the newly established rates are called unthinking persons and members not acquainted with that which they object to. Among those who protested against the rates here, who last Monday evening participated in the attack on the supreme council when debating with Deputies Johannett of Monroe and McAnney of Racine, were Assemblyman Norcross, Attorney A. A. Jackson, Clerk of the Board of Education S. C. Burnham, a local clergyman and many other prominent citizens and old residents of Janesville. The Royal Arcanum was one of the best insurance fraternities in existence up to a short time ago and its membership, especially in the place like Janesville where the council was among the first to be instituted, is from the better class of people.

Text in Part
The editorial concerning the protests which have been made says in part: "According to the reports in the daily newspapers and the resolutions and protests received from subordinate Councils, a great many members of the Royal Arcanum have condemned the action of the Supreme Council and protested against the new rates without duly considering the new plan, and before it was understood. Our old enemy, the commercial life interest, has done much to foment dissatisfaction among the members. Agents have been offering term insurance policies and representing them to be old-line policies and claiming that the rates were less than those of the Royal Arcanum."

"The newspapers have magnified the excitement in different parts of the country very much. The member who denounces the Supreme Officers and the Supreme Council in the heat of discussion is given a big headline and his utterances are spread before the public in flaming type, but the thinking member, who quietly reads the literature and does not participate in the protest, is not heard from and is not represented in the papers."

Some Instances
The protestors object because they consider the new plan one which does the older members, who have built the order up and established its high position, a severe injustice. The rates in several cases for three thousand dollars insurance are raised from $2.02 per month to $11.34 per month, which raises regularly as they advance in age till sixty-five years old when their rate regularly each month will be $16.08. Under another option where the rates are raised but slightly, the insurance becomes but term protection, premiums and insurance ceasing at the age of sixty-five.

SLAUGHTER HOUSE DESTROYED BY FIRE

Property of Kronitz Bros. in Blackhawk Burned Last Evening—Loss $500.

Kronitz Bros.' slaughter-house on the Racine road in the Blackhawk district, about half a mile from this city, was burned to the ground last evening. The origin of the flames is unknown but someone was thought to have set enough to release a flock of sheep confined in one portion before the fire gained much headway. So far as can be learned it was about 10:30 o'clock when general attention was called to the blaze. The tools were destroyed and the total loss is estimated at $500. No insurance, companies having refused to issue a policy on remote property of the kind.

AGITATING STREET FAIR HERE AGAIN

The Chicago Manager, Was Here Feeling the Pulse of the People Saturday Evening.

Saturday evening the manager of a newly organized carnival, called upon headquarters in Chicago called upon Alderman Connel and several other citizens in a quiet little mission effort to persuade the Fraternal Order of Eagles to charter a street fair in Janesville sometime before the next new moon. Some of those with whom he talked became quite enthusiastic, providing the shows could be given on a vacant lot and kept off the streets. The name of the visitor could not be learned and the proposition has not yet been officially submitted to the lodge. President Nichols said this afternoon that he had heard nothing of it.

CAME TO RECOVER A STOLEN HORSE

Detective John Cramer of Chicago, Ended Successful Quest Here Yesterday.

Through a horse-trade made last week with a man named Lieges, hailing from Madison, Henry A. Laymonde of this city became the possessor of a fine iron-gray mare with a good pedigree and record. Presumably, when he parted with his brown horse in exchange, he chucked over the bargain, though the brown was an animal worth perhaps $500. On the paper train from Chicago yesterday morning came Detective Sergeant John Cramer. He was looking for a gray mare stolen from the Dunsmuir Express Co., 52 Washington street, two weeks ago. The animal had been traced to Mapleville, Ill., where the thief had gotten rid of the buggy and parted with the animal in a trade with a gypsy, Art Lieges. The latter had taken the mare to Madison and turned it over to his brother and the brother had brought it to Janesville and made the deal with Mr. Laymonde. Detective Cramer took the iron gray to Chicago this morning. The Madison man who made the trade is well known and will probably be forced to surrender the horse he took in exchange from Mr. Laymonde.

ARRESTED GAY YOUNG MEN WHO MISUSED LIVERY TEAM

Police Gave Three Chicago Youths Berths in Lock-up Last Night.

Four Chicago young men who have been employed near Footville gave a team of ponies some rough driving and furnished a free open-air concert near the Courthouse park yesterday afternoon. They also became very boisterous and noisy while partaking of food in Flynn's restaurant about three o'clock. About 7:30 Officers Fanning and Bear came upon them on Milwaukee street and told them to either go back to Footville or put the team in some stable for a rest. Pretending they were going to take the latter course they continued to drive about town and presently ran into the police a second time. One of the quartette had departed company with his friends before this second meeting came to pass. The three remaining were taken off to jail and the rig sent to the Farmers' Rest. The young men were Louis Carson, George Wade, and Leo Waddell. They were very meek and penitent this morning and when it was discovered that no serious injury had been done the horses, one of them having been lame before they started out, the prisoners were given a lecture by Marshal Comstock and allowed to depart.

IN THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE

By MIRIAM MICHELSON

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company.)

Obermuller came over to me then, and took my hand for a minute.

"It's a pity they don't know about the Gray rose diamond," he whispered, helping me on with my jacket. "They'd see how silly this little three hundred dollar business is."

Oh, Mag, Mag, I hear a man like hat talk to you as though you were his kind, when you have the feel of the coarse prison stripes between your dry, shaking fingers, and the close prison smell is already poisoning your nostrils!

"I don't see—" my voice shook—"how you can believe in me."

"Don't you?" he laughed. "That's easy. You've got brains, Nance, and the most inflexible thing you could do just now, when your foot is already on the ladder, would be just this—to get off in order to pick up a trinket out of the mud, when there's a fortune up at the top waiting for you. Clever people don't do asinine things. And other clever people know that they don't. You're clever, but so am I—in my weak, small way. Come along, little girl."

He pulled my hand in his arm and we walked out, followed by the two men.

Oh, no! It was all very quiet and looked just like a little theater party that had an early supper engagement. Obermuller nodded to the manager out in the deserted lobby, who stopped us and asked me what I thought of the star.

You'll think me mad, Mag. Those fellows with the badges were sure I was, but Obermuller's eyes only twinkled, and the manager's grin grew broad when, catching up the end of my skirt and cake-walking up and down, I sang under my breath that coon song that was trailing over and over through my head.

"Bravo! bravo!" whispered the manager, hoarsely, clapping his hands softly.

I gave one of those quick, funny, boyish nods the star inside affects and wiped my lips with my handkerchief. That brought down my house. Even the biggest fellow with the badge giggled recognizingly, and then put his hand quickly to his mouth and tried to look severe and official.

The color had come back to Obermuller's face; it was worth dancing for—that.

"Be patient, Mag; let me tell it my way."

There wasn't room in the coupe waiting out in front for more than two. So Obermuller couldn't come in it. But he put me in—Mag, dear, dear Mag—he put me in as if I was a lady—not like Gray; a real one. A thing like that counts when two detectives are watching. It counted afterward in the way they treated me.

The big man climbed up on the seat with the driver. The blue-eyed fellow got in and sat beside me, closing the door.

"I'll be out there almost as soon as you are," Obermuller said, standing a moment beside the lowered window.

"You good fellow!" I said, and then, trying to laugh: "I'll do as much for you some day."

He shook his fist laughingly at me, and I waved my hand as we drove off.

"You know, miss, there may be some mistake about this," said the man next to me, "and—"

"Yes, there may be. In fact, there is."

"I'm sure I'll be very glad if it is a mistake. They do happen—though not often. You spoke of Dorgan—"

"Did I?"

"Yes, Tom Dorgan, who busted out of Sing Sing the other day." I said, smiling right into his blue eyes. "The Tom Dorgan I mentioned is a slight-of-hand performer at the vaudeville. Ever see him?"

"No—no."

"Clever fellow. You ought to. Perhaps you don't recognize him under that name. On the bills he's Prof. Laughout. Stage people have so many names, you know."

"Yes, so have—some other people." I laughed, and he grinned back at me.

"Now, that's mean of you," I said; "I never had but one. It was all I needed."

It flashed through me then what a thing like this might do to a name. You know, Mag, every bit of recognition an actress steals from the world is so much capital. It isn't like the old graft when you had to begin new every time you took up a piece of work. And your name—the name the world knows—and its knowing it makes it worth having like everything—that name is the sum of every scheme you've planned, of every time you've got away with the goods, of every laugh you've lifted, of every bit of cleverness you've thought out and embodied, of everything that's in you, of everything you are.

But I didn't dare think long of this. I turned to him.

"All me about this charge," I said. "Where was the purse? Whose was it? And why haven't they missed it till after a week?"

"They missed it all right that night, but Mrs. Gates wanted it kept quiet till the servants had been shadowed and it was positively proved that they hadn't got away with it."

"And then she thought of me?"

"And then she thought of you."

"I wonder why?"

"Because you were the only person in that room except Mrs. Gates, who lady who lost the purse," Mrs. Ramsay, and—eh?"

"N—nothing. Mrs. Ramsay, you said?"

"Yes."

"Not Mrs. Edward Ramsay, of Philadelphia?"

"Oh, you know the name?"

"Oh, yes, I know it."

"It was printed, you know, in gold lettering on the inside flap and—"

"I don't know."

"Well, it was, and it contained $300, Mrs. Ramsay says. She had slipped it under the fold of the spread at the top of the bed in the room where you took off your things in Mrs. Gates' presence, and put them on again when no one else was there."

"And you mean to tell me that this is all?" I asked him: "that every bit of evidence you have to warrant your treating an innocent girl like—"

"You didn't behave like a very innocent girl, if you'll remember," he said, dryly, "when I first came into the box. In fact, if that fellow hadn't just come in then I believe you'd 'a' confessed the whole job."

"Taint too late," he added.

I didn't answer. I put my head back against the cushions and closed my eyes. I could feel the scrutiny of his blue eyes on my naked face—your face is so unprotected with the eyes closed; like a tort whose battery is withdrawn. But I was tired—it throbbed when you care. A year ago, Mag, this sort of thing—the risk, the nearness to danger, the chances one way or the other—would have intoxicated me. I used to feel as though I was dancing on a volcano and daring it to explode. The more twistings and turnings there were to the labyrinth, the greater glory it was to get out. Maggie, darling, you have before you a mournful spectacle—the degeneration of Nancy Olden. It isn't that she's lost courage. It's only that she used to be able to think of only one thing, and now—What do you suppose it is, Mag? If you know, don't you dare to tell me.

When we got to the flat Obermuller was already there. At the door I pulled out my key and opened it with a flourish.

"Won't you come in, gentlemen, and spend the evening?" I asked.

They followed me in. First to the parlor. The two fellows threw off their coats and searched that through and through—not a drawer did they miss, not a bit of furniture did they fail to move. Obermuller and I sat there gazing at them as they pried about in their shirt-sleeves. That Trust business has taken the life out of him of late. All their tricks, all their sneerings, their cheatings, their bossing and bragging and bullying have got on to his nerves till he looks like a chained bear getting a drubbing. And he swears that they're in a conspiracy to freeze him and a few others like him out; he believes there's actually a paper in existence that would prove it. But this affair of the purse seemed to excite him till he behaved like a bad schoolboy.

And I? Well, Nance Olden was never far behind at the Cruelty when there was anything going on. We trailed after them, and when they'd finished with the bedrooms—yours and mine—I asked the big fellow to come into the kitchen with Mr. O—and me, while the blue-eyed detective tackled the dining-room, and I'd get up a lunch for us all.

Mag, you should have seen Fred Obermuller with a big apron on him, dressing the salad while I was making sandwiches. The Cruelty taught me how to cook, even if it did teach me other things. You wouldn't have believed that the Trust had got him by the throat, and was choking the last breath out of him. You wouldn't have believed that our salaries hadn't been paid for three weeks, that our houses were dwindling every night, that—

I was thinking about it all there in the back of my head, trying to see a way out of it—you know if there is such an agreement as Obermuller swears there is, it's against the law—while we rattled on, the two of us, like a couple of children on a picnic, when I heard a crash behind me.

The salad bowl had slipped from Obermuller's fingers. He stood with his back turned to me, his eyes fixed upon that searching detective.

But he wasn't searching any more, Mag. He was standing still as a pointer that's scented game. He had moved the lounge out from the wall, and there on the floor, spread open where it had fallen, lay a handsome elephant-skin purse, with gold corners. From where I stood, Mag, I could read the plain gold lettering on the dark leather. I didn't have to move. It was plain enough—quite plain.

MRS. EDWARD RAMSAY.

Hush, hush, Mag; if you take on so, how can I tell you the rest?

Obermuller got in front of me, as I started to walk into the dining-room. I don't know what his idea was. I don't suppose he does exactly—if it wasn't to spare me the sight of that damned thing.

Oh how I hated it, that purse! I hated it as if it had been something alive that could be glad of what it had done. I wished it was alive that I could tear and rend it and stamp on it and throw it in a fire, and drag it out again, with burned and bleeding nails, to tear it again and again. I wanted to fall on it and hide it; to push it far, far away out of sight; to stamp it down—down into the very bottom of the earth, where it could feel the hell it was making for me. But I only stood there, stupidly looking at it, having pushed past Obermuller, as though I never wanted to see anything else.

And then I heard that blue-eyed fellow's words.

"Well," he said, pulling on his coat as though he'd done a good day's work, "I guess you'd just better come along with me."
